

ABSTRACT

A method of speech recognition can include receiving at least one spoken word and performing speech recognition to determine a recognition result. The spoken word can be compared to the recognition result to determine if the recognition result is an 5 incorrectly recognized word. The spoken word can be identified as an alternate word candidate for the incorrectly recognized word.

P1013141;3